Evelyn Nesbit Thaw holds the life of her husband at her command. At least this is the belief of Delphin M. Delmas, of California, the emment lawyer who has been retained for $100,000 to conduct the defense of Harry Thaw in his trial for killing Stanford White. Thaw and his counsel, according to information in the hands of the District-Attorney, believe that she holds the key of the situation and that by going on the stand and giving testimony to prove that her husband was justified in shooting White, she will be able to sway the jury.
